WE ARE ALL KIDS 在画厨，一起变回小小朋友

Lay aside the scripts of maturity, responsibility, and propriety for a while, and no longer go through the motions of being who others expect you to be.

There's no need to always be right, calm, or perfect, nor to suppress your true emotions just to maintain so-called propriety.

Let us stay in this moment without questioning its meaning or weighing gains and losses, simply drawing closer to each other—quietly or passionately, either is fine. The very fact that we can share ease and happiness together is already precious enough.
